

Who hated the 911 dispatchers in St. Louis so badly that he wanted them all dead, and would do all he could to make it come true? Someone did, and he was killing them one at a time, leaving their bodies at different locations around the St. Louis Arch.

Was it a jealous lover, or maybe someone who blamed the city police officers for the death of a loved one? Whatever the reason, he picked 911 dispatcher Cassie to be the dispatcher that he would call and brag to about the killings. He promised she would be the last one he killed!

"St. Louis City police, 911, may I help you?" Cassie asked, answering the dreaded call of the night. At the sound of his voice, she started shaking.

"Hi, Cassie. Guess who I have with me tonight?" The killer laughed hysterically.

Cassie knew what was going to happen. AGAIN!

Glenda LaTour is a new author living in St. Louis, Missouri, with her husband and thirteen-year-old granddaughter. She has four grown sons and five grandchildren. This is her first book, with the sequel expected in a few months. Glenda writes only easy-to-read adult fiction stories.

www.PublishAmerica.com

Murders Near the Arch

Glenda LaTour

5.50 x 8.50

.335

5.50 x 8.50

