

Jacqueline Rankine-Van Wassenhoven was born in Edinburgh, Scotland. She came to Canada in 1957 with her parents and older sister Margaret, on the ship The Fairsea. She was a member of The Canadian Children's Book Centre and The Children's Writer. She has always been interested in writing stories for children. She is now retired and lives in Toronto, Canada, with her husband Denis (a retired school teacher) and her thirteen-year-old grey cat Serge.

This picture book story is for everyone who is young at heart or older. It's about a young girl called Jennifer who loves to read books, especially books about water fairies. One summer's day sitting by the pond near her village she meets a talking frog named Waldor. Waldor is quite a charming character and introduces Jennifer to some of his friends, the water fairies and Mrs. Nightingale. How does Jennifer get onto the lily pad with Waldor?...And the story continues.

www.PublishAmerica.com

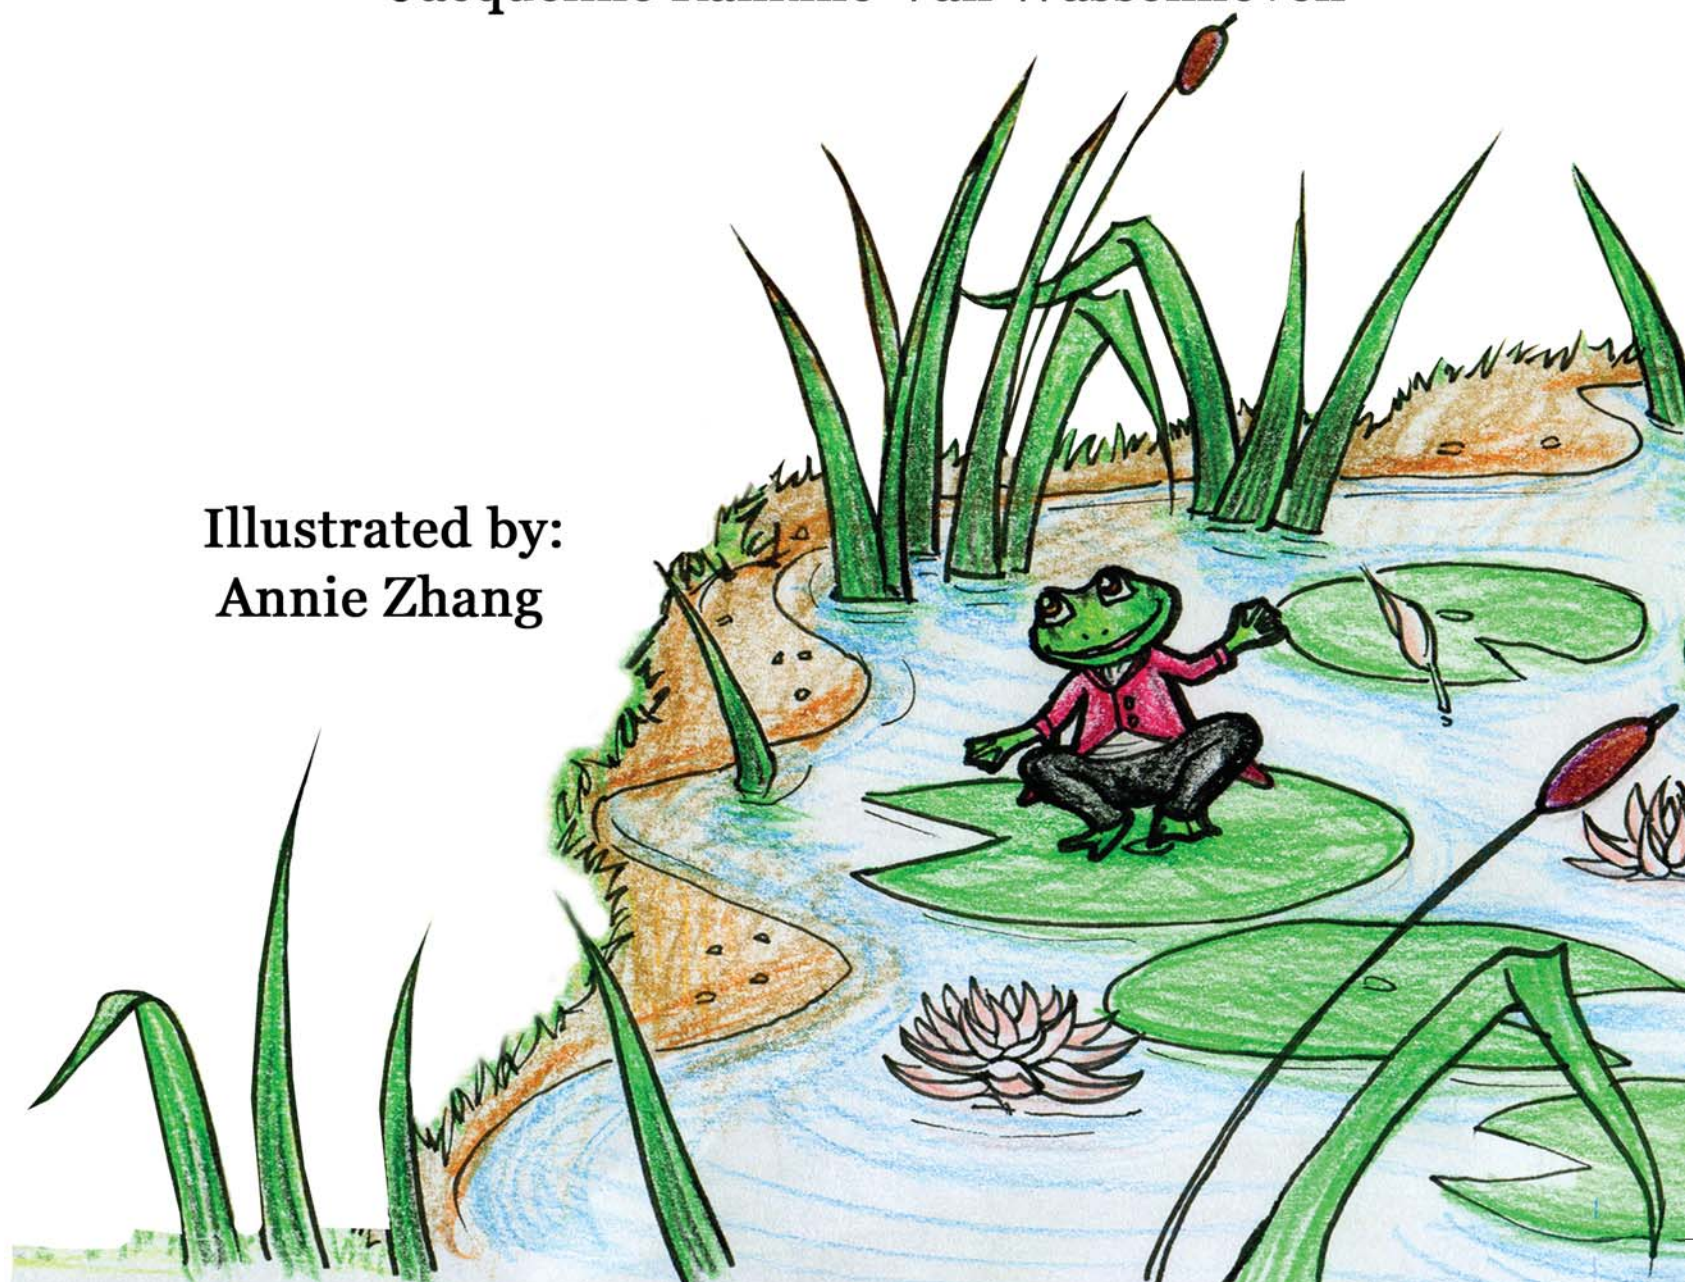

8.50 x 8.50

.042

A Frog Named Waldor

Written by:
Jacqueline Rankine-Van Wassenhoven

Illustrated by:
Annie Zhang

8.50 x 8.50