How easy is it for an investment broker to deceive clients? Very, particularly if his personal hero is Bernie Madoff. Skip Horowitz, along with his old pal A.J., has created what they believe is a foolproof scheme using commodities trading, bookmaking, and other various businesses as covers. Their plan has served them well for decades, surviving the scrutiny of government agencies lacking solid proof to support any allegations of wrongdoing. But luck can't hold forever...or can it? Catherine O'Reilley, newly sponsored in the high-risk world of investment strategy by Skip Horowitz, is about to find out.

...an incredibly fast-paced roller-coaster ride through the world of illegal commodities trading with enough sun and sin to head up every reader's day (and night). Michelle Malsbury at her finest! A definite must read!

-Marilou Trask-Curtin, Author of "In My Grandfather's House: A Catskill Journal"

...a tight 'suck-you-in" novel! Intriguing from first page to last...Great characters and a heap of twists and unforeseen turns.

-Shane Briant, best-selling Australian author, actor, and screenwriter.
