NYPD BLUE LIES

PLAYBOY

ENTERTAINMENT FOR MEN

AUGUST 1994 • $4.95

NEON DEION

NYPD NUDE

ONE OF NEW YORK'S FINEST STEPS OUT OF UNIFORM

compensación por casos de discriminación

Pago por racismo

PAGINA 3

Copyright 2004 © Hoy, LLC. All Rights Reserved

Ex-Finest cops pl

in radio-toss dea

BY ROBERT G

DAILY NEWS STA

PLEADED guilty yesterday to

died from skull fractur

urosurgeons

NEW YORK POST

HOME DELIVERY 1-800-552-7678 CALL TODAY!

LATE CITY FINAL

SATURDAY, MARCH 17, 2007 / Mostly cloudy, afternoon snow showers, 38 / Weather: Page 16 ★★ www.nypost.com 50¢

Greenwich Village shootout

FACE OF A MADMAN

PAGES 6-7

COPS INDICTED

NEW YORK POST 75

50 SHOTS

Police kill groom on

Grand jury says shooting was a crime

Three of the five NYPD officers who fired 50 shots into a car and killed unarmed Sean Bell (right) were indicted by a grand jury yesterday, their lawyers said.

Charged are Gescard Isnora, Michael Oliver (left) and Marc Cooper (far left).

Rudy: old foe

By DAVID K. LI

GOP presidential

date floated

Rudy

'S HOSTAGE TI

ER THE GUN AG

Klepped, led the effort

on Seventh Avenue.

But they gave much of the credit to an "in-young cop"

who never dealt with a hostage situation be-

Officer Charles Castro of the Midtown

South stationhouse

was the first cop at the scene and the first to speak with gunman,

Eddie Hernandez,

Loudan said.

Castro spoke to him

in English and Span-

lish and also spoke to

Hernandez' brother

and brother-in-law

to find a way to convince the gunman to give up.

"He was a very astute and intelligent police officer who fit

in with our team

concept," Loudan said.

When Hernandez

stopped talking to us,

we would call him

again and put Castro

on the phone.

"Castro managed to build a good rapport

with him."

Hernandez' mother,

very dangerous person," Loudan said.

He threatened the police, he taunted us,

he was remorseful,

one occasion

time suicidal," Loudan

added.

Hernandez "put a gun in his mouth several times. He also had it at his head and his neck," Loudan

said.

Finally, after hours of negotiation, Hernandez surrendered

his gun to team mem-

Ex-con frees 2 hosta

Fired worker surrenders after storming midtown office wit

By ROBERT GEARTY and ALTON SLAGLE

An ex-convict, fired from his job at an H & R Block tax office for allegedly stealing $1,000, invaded the Manhattan office with a sawed-off shotgun yesterday and took a woman and her son hostage.

The lengthy stand-off with police threw traffic around midtown into a rush-hour nightmare.

The gunman freed the woman unharmed 4½ hours after the siege began and released her son about an hour and a half later.

The gunman remained inside, threatening suicide at times as he haggled with police over assurances he would not receive a long jail term. Shortly before midnight—almost 10 hours after the siege began—he walked out and surrendered.

After it was all over, the arrested gunman told hostage negotiator Detective Al Baker: "I would like to go back to school and finish up."

Police said the gunman, Edward Hernandez, 24, of Cherry St. on the lower East Side, burst into the H & R Block office at 360 Seventh Ave., at 30th St., shortly after 2 p.m., brandishing the sawed-off shotgun.

He ordered about a dozen customers and tax preparers out of the office and took office manager Phyllis Noviek and her son, tax preparer Michael Novick, hostage.

Ducked to escape cops

Cops said Hernandez apparently tried to leave the office minutes later, but ducked back inside after spotting police on the street, and angrily fired a shotgun blast into the floor.

Police spokeswom

Hernandez alternate

himself—threatening

tapes, threatening to

were not met. Hernandez

wanted pledges that h

as a parole violator.

He freed Phyllis N

assurances from his

Henderson. Flown to

But he balked at releas

7:50 p.m.

Once, he said he was

(kill) him," last one re

"Tell him we ain't goin

Fired before

Hernandez had been f

lost his job at the tax off

had been rehired, McGill

A spokesman for the said Hernandez had been

Elmira Correctional Facili

serving 21 months of

sentence on a burglary con

ting to take a bex radio in station.

The spokesman said Her

arrests, including a 1981

attempted robbery in a gold

also in the Bronx, for which

years probation.

A police chaplain and Hern

who talked to her son by telep

at the scene. Hernandez also his girl friend, a patient at a upstate Harris.

Police armed with rifles flanked the ta

office and stood at the ready on the corners

of 29th and 30th Sts.

The standoff stalled rush-hour traffic

Ex-Finest cops plea

n radio-toss death

COP PLEADED guilty yesterday to his police radio at a fleeing drug

striking him in the head and kill-

Yokemick, 35, pleaded guilty to

nts of violating the civil rights of

Kenneth Banks and faces 33 to 41

in prison.

s in a full sprint, about 10 yards

nd I threw the radio," Yokemick

Manhattan Federal Court.

by Magistrate Judge Michael Dol-

w much force he used, the strap-

oot-3 Yokemick replied, "I guess it

stantial."

ncident took place in Harlem on

1998, when Yokemick said he saw

volved in a crack transaction.

urt, Yokemick said that when

6, tried to escape on a bicycle, he im and threw the 2-pound radio.

said he never informed his ser-

at he struck Banks.

ty medical examiner said Banks

BY ROBERT GEARTY

DAILY NEWS STAFF WRITER

died from skull fractures caused by the ra

dio. Neurosurgeons who treated Banks

said his fatal injuries came from hitting his head on the pavement.

Prosecutor Sharon McCarthy said Yoke-

mick failed to get Banks medical help.

Banks was taken to the police precinct,

not the hospital, McCarthy said. There,

Banks started having seizures, and Yoke-

mick told other officers that it was because

Banks had "ingested narcotics."

A state grand jury cleared Yokemick. A

Manhattan Federal Court jury later ordered Yokemick to pay $605,000 in damages to Banks' mother. The city paid $1.1 million to Banks' family to settle a lawsuit.

Yokemick also admitted beating up a teacher in Westchester in 2002. He served

60 days in jail for the assault.

After court, Yokemick declined com ment. No sentencing date was set.

rgearty@ulit.nydailynews.com

ullets bare cop's ID

strip-club gun spree

BY MELISSA GRACE

and JONATHAN LEMIRE

DAILY NEWS STAFF WRITERS

ETERAN transit cop charged with

in off 12 rounds at a Staten Island

ub was fingered through ballistics

e, prosecutors said yesterday.

han Lugo, 36, of Staten Island,

ahead silently when he was ar-

Investigators were looking into Lugo's

work history but had not uncovered any other troubling incidents, a police source

said.

Lugo's neighbors in West Brighton

were shocked by the charges and defended the cop as a man who never caused

trouble.

"I can't see John opening fire for no rea-

NYPD BLUE LIES

said he never

hat he struck Banks.

city medical examiner said Banks

Bullets bare cop's

in strip-club gun spree

BY MELISSA GRACE

and JONATHAN LEMIRE

DAILY NEWS STAFF WRITERS

THE VETERAN transit cop charged with squeezing off 12 rounds at a Staten Island

strip club was fingered through ballistics evidence, prosecutors said yesterday.

Jonathan Lugo, 36, of Staten Island, stared ahead silently when he was arraigned on reckless endangerment charg-

Investigators were looking into Lugo's

work history but had not uncovered any other troubling incidents, a police sour

said.

Lugo's neighbors in West Brigh

were shocked by the charges and defe

ed the cop as a man who never ca

trouble.

"I can't see John opening fire for n

son," said Vincent Tarsa

and DAN KADISON

A deputy inspector with the NYPD was demoted and transferred after investigators concluded that he altered important crime statistics while overseeing a Queens precinct in 2004.

Thomas M

former cer a had capta

down

occu

and

ment

to p

mar

fro

th

pu

19

Co

Bratton.

The

crime-fig

pares cur

ures to Pa

precinct,

ment high

veloping

area by a

CompSta

as one c

mandin

graded

and lo

can h

promot

ments.

Manz

at the

around

transferr

mer and

tion, which came at the behest of Police Commissioner Ray Kelly.

Manzolillo — an 18-year department veteran who also worked in Brooklyn

North and the 106th Precinct in

2 slain at Quee

CRIME SCENE UNIT

COPS FIRED 41 SHOTS

Bronx DA probes fatal shooting of unarmed ma

SEE PAGES 4 & 5

'GAY' SMEAR $MACK

Jury hits NYPD

EXCLUSIVE

By BRAD HAMILTON

A Manhattan jury has socked the NYPD for $1.5 million, ruling the top transit cop refused to give a coveted sergeant's badge because he assumed the man was gay — then wrecked the career of two supervisors who supported the sergeant.

The Nov. 22 verdict in Manhattan Supreme Court came after James Hall, a two-star assistant chief and one of the NYPD's highest-ranking officers, rejected Sgt. Robert Sorrenti for a position with the youth-services section.

The section runs the Police Athletic League, the anti-drug effort DARE and other programs for kids.

Hall asked Sorrenti about his sexual history and how

JAMES HALL

Rejected "gay" cop.

Cop who killed fleeing suspect cleared by NYPD

By JOHN MARZULLI

DAILY NEWS POLICE BUREAU CHIEF

Plea deal fury in eli slay

Ex-cop to get 1 to 3 yrs.

SORRY ISN'T GOOD ENOUGH for Noe Chametla

Not with his son dead — killed when a carelessly fooled around with his

a Queens deli last year.

And not when his son's kille

John Malik, agreed to a plea

deal yesterday that puts him be hind bars for one to three years.

"My son is dead; what am I going to do with an 'I'm sorry?'"

asked Chametla, who expressed

his frustration with prosecutors

for offering the deal.

"They are trying to say my

son's life doesn't

count," he said.

"One to three years

is not enough.

Ex-con frees 2 hosta

Fired worker surrenders after storming midtown office wit

By ROBERT GEARTY and ALTON SLAGLE

An ex-convict, fired from his job at an H & R Block tax office for allegedly stealing $1,000, invaded the Manhattan office with a sawed-off shotgun yesterday and took a woman and her son hostage.

The lengthy stand-off with police threw traffic around midtown into a rush-hour nightmare.

The gunman freed the woman unharmed 4½ hours after the siege began and released her son about an hour and a half later.

The gunman remained inside, threatening suicide at times as he haggled with police over assurances he would not receive a long jail term. Shortly before midnight—almost 10 hours after the siege began—he walked out and surrendered.

After it was all over, the arrested gunman told hostage negotiator Detective Al Baker: "I would like to go back to school and finish up."

Police said the gunman, Edward Hernandez, 24, of Cherry St. on the lower East Side, burst into the H & R Block office at 360 Seventh Ave., at 30th St., shortly after 2 p.m., brandishing the sawed-off shotgun.

He ordered about a dozen customers and tax preparers out of the office and took office manager Phyllis Noviek and her son, tax preparer Michael Novick, hostage.

Ducked to escape cops

Cops said Hernandez apparently tried to leave the office minutes later, but ducked back inside after spotting police on the street, and angrily fired a shotgun blast into the floor.

Police spokeswom

Hernandez alternate

himself—threatening

tapes, threatening to

were not met. Hernandez

wanted pledges that h

as a parole violator.

He freed Phyllis N

assurances from his

Henderson. Flown to

But he balked at releas

7:50 p.m.

Once, he said he was

(kill) him," last one re

"Tell him we ain't goin

Fired before

Hernandez had been f

lost his job at the tax off

had been rehired, McGill

A spokesman for the

said Hernandez had been

Elmira Correctional Facili

serving 21 months of

sentence on a burglary con

ting to take a bex radio in

station.

The spokesman said Her

arrests, including a 1981

attempted robbery in a gold

also in the Bronx, for which

years probation.

A police chaplain and Hern

who talked to her son by telep

at the scene. Hernandez also

his girl friend, a patient at a

upstate Harris.

Police armed with rifles flanked the ta

office and stood at the ready on the corners

of 29th and 30th Sts.

The standoff stalled rush-hour traffic

Mob's hand seen

n cop-kill escape

ICE O'SHAUGHNESSY

r Patrick Bannon

to dodge lawmen

he is getting help

said yesterday.

PHOTO EXCLUSIVE

EYE OF THE STORM: Detective Mike Oliver (left) leaves his lawyer's Manhattan

Calls 50 bullets fir

By DAVID SEIFMAN,

MURRAY WEISS

and LEONARD GREENE

The cops who unleashed a fatal, 50-bullet barrage on an unarmed Queens groom on an "excessive force" charge were "unacceptable," a police source said yesterday.

The officers' actions, as he

The officer who fired 31 of those shots was 12-year-veteran Detective Mike Oliver, who was suspended yesterday by The Post for

MAYOR BLOOMBERG

Raising eyebrows yesterday.

Bloomberg, acknowledg

cally charged shooting

"It's hard to understand that I was not there at the

why so-and-shots should be and unacceptable," he

to reporters at City

at an afternoon press

with elected officials

over new wireless

Noviembre 5-Noviembre 18, 2004

Queens, anatomy

a fatal gunfight

Police provided details of the lightning-fast episode — in which more than 60 shots were traded by the gunmen and police. It began at 6:22 p.m. Tuesday outside the illegal gambling parlor and social club on 43d Ave. in Corona.

Authorities said the 17-minute ordeal began when a six-member cleaning crew entered the locked club and found five gunmen. It ended when the hostage and two suspects were shot.

Emergency Service cops and hostage negotiators raced to the scene to surround the club, but Saeed Ahmad, a 26-year-old father of two, was dead.

Queens Detectives Chief Raymond Abruzzi said the gunmen, carrying semi-automatic weapons and walkie-talkies, were waiting in the club, possibly to ambush an employe coming in to empty two Joker Poker gambling machines. The machines can hold thousands of dollars when full.

The machines, however, held only $70.25, which led police sources to theorize that the robbers could have been after drug money. They said they had indications drugs had been sold at the club.

Worker escaped

One member of the cleaning crew escaped and flagged down police. The officers called for backup, and when two cops entered the club the suspects fired at them, police said.

At that point the gunmen scattered, with one going to the roof and two fleeing out the back. As more police units arrived, two gunmen fled through the front and burst into a building two doors down.

They dragged Ahmad from his home and pulled him down the street with a gun to his neck. The gunmen went toward a city bus and tried to board it. But driver Glenn Foertsch locked the doors and told his three riders to hit the floor.

The suspects tried to force Ahmad into a car, but he resisted and was shot.

"I can't get it out of my head," Foertsch said. "To see a human life taken like that without reason, it's just awful."

After Ahmad was shot, his killers ran down the block. One of them emptied a 15-shot clip from his 9-mm. pistol before cops fatally shot him.

He was identified as Raphael Mendez, 21, of 100th St. in Queens.

Victor Rodriguez, 26, of 113th St., Queens, the other suspect holding Ahmad, was wounded in the neck and back. He was listed in stable condition at City Hospital Center at Elmhurst.

Seeed Ahmad

Gunm

kill m

& dre

By HELEN PETERS

Daily News Staff Writer

A hard-working handyman was in ment apartment w men broke down h took him hostage ar his dream of a better his family who had j grated from Pakistan

Saeed Ahmad, 26, the United States fi hope. He had steadily a neighborhood g good friends and his 2-year-old son had joi from his native Pakis five months ago. He a the father of a newborn

But it all came to a ing end Tuesday evenin

Two frantic gunmen fl the scene of a social clu bery broke into his bas apartment on 43d Ave. rona, dragged him int street and shot him a tried to escape, said spokesman Detective J McConville.

Ahmad lived in a two frame house — just a doors from the social cl with three other fam from his hometown of hore, Pakistan.

Yesterday, six of friends met a steady str of mourners from the com nity and talked about Ah as a kind and gentle man first settled in Queens years ago.

Three years ago he marri a woman from his hometo Afia Saeed, and worked h to bring her to the U.S.

"He was here yesterd We had been enjoying tea i was in this room at 4 o'clock said Imdad Baig, 42, a cu driver who lives in the hou

Yesterday, Baig pointed to the splintered plywood doo that the gunmen ha smashed. He said he watche helplessly from the fron

Cop who killed fleeing suspect cleared by NYPD

By JOHN MARZULLI

DAILY NEWS POLICE BUREAU CHIEF

cop who killed a fleeing suspect when he threw has been cleared of wrongdo-

learned

Plea deal fury in eli slay

Ex-cop to get 1 to 3 yrs.

SORRY ISN'T GOOD ENOUGH for Noe Chametla

Not with his son dead — killed when a

carelessly fooled around with his

a Queens deli last year.

And not when his son's kille

John Malik, agreed to a plea

deal yesterday that puts him be hind bars for one to three years.

"My son is dead; what am I going to do with an 'I'm sorry?'"

asked Chametla, who expressed

his frustration with prosecutors

for offering the deal.

"They are trying to say my

son's life doesn't

count," he said.

"One to three years

is not enough.

NEW YORK POST

Thursday, February 20, 1986

35 CENTS

FINAL

TONIGHT: Cloudy, chance of rain, upper 30s. TOMORROW: Cloudy, chance of rain, 45-50. Details: Page 2.

Stock prices: P. 31

TV listings: P. 87

PARK AV. DOC ON RAPE RAP

Drugged & attacked, says blonde mom

PAGE TWO

D'Amato urges tax amnesty — Page 2

More face the ax at NASA — Page 5

Party host on drink walk rap — Page 13

Gunman gives in after 9½ hrs.

Frustrated Eddie Hernandez, 24, surrenders meekly to police late last night after a 9½-hour siege at an H&R Block tax office at Seventh Av. and 30th St. The disgruntled former employe was armed with a sawed-off shotgun, and held a woman and her son, both Block employes, hostage until late in the evening. The drama, which tied Midtown traffic into a knot, finally ended peacefully with the help of seasoned police negotiators. P.3.

Chaman-ju

PAGINA

Noe Chametla, padre del joven de origen mexicano que f

crado el ex policía John Malik, habla durante una protest

New York Post: Sunday, December 3, 2006 nypost.com

17

Ex-Finest cops plea

n radio-toss death

COP PLEADED guilty yesterday to

his police radio at a fleeing drug

striking him in the head and kill-

Yokemick, 35, pleaded guilty to

nts of violating the civil rights of

Kenneth Banks and faces 33 to 41

in prison.

s in a full sprint, about 10 yards

nd I threw the radio," Yokemick

Manhattan Federal Court.

by Magistrate Judge Michael Dol-

w much force he used, the strap-

oot-3 Yokemick replied, "I guess it

stantial."

ncident took place in Harlem on

1998, when Yokemick said he saw

volved in a crack transaction.

urt, Yokemick said that when

6, tried to escape on a bicycle, he

im and threw the 2-pound radio.

said he never informed his ser-

at he struck Banks.

ty medical examiner said Banks

BY ROBERT GEARTY

DAILY NEWS STAFF WRITER

died from skull fractures caused by the ra

dio. Neurosurgeons who treated Banks

said his fatal injuries came from hitting his

head on the pavement.

Prosecutor Sharon McCarthy said Yoke-

mick failed to get Banks medical help.

Banks was taken to the police precinct,

not the hospital, McCarthy said. There,

Banks started having seizures, and Yoke-

mick told other officers that it was because

Banks had "ingested narcotics."

A state grand jury cleared Yokemick. A

Manhattan Federal Court jury later ordered Yokemick to pay $605,000 in damages to Banks' mother. The city paid $1.1 million to Banks' family to settle a lawsuit.

Yokemick also admitted beating up a teacher in Westchester in 2002. He served

60 days in jail for the assault.

After court, Yokemick declined com

ment. No sentencing date was set.

rgearty@ulit.nydailynews.com

ullets bare cop's ID

strip-club gun spree

BY MELISSA GRACE

and JONATHAN LEMIRE

DAILY NEWS STAFF WRITERS

ETERAN transit cop charged with

in off 12 rounds at a Staten Island

ub was fingered through ballistics

e, prosecutors said yesterday.

han Lugo, 36, of Staten Island,

ahead silently when he was ar-

Investigators were looking into Lugo's

work history but had not uncovered any

other troubling incidents, a police source

said.

Lugo's neighbors in West Brighton

were shocked by the charges and defended the cop as a man who never caused

trouble.

"I can't see John opening fire for no rea-

RIVER'S SEAT: Bus driver Glenn Foertsch wasn't cowed by gunman and refused to let them board his bus in their escape try.

DAILY NEWS CLARENCE DAVIS

Queens, anatomy

a fatal gunfight

Police provided details of the lightning-fast episode — in which more than 60 shots were traded by the gunmen and police. It began at 6:22 p.m. Tuesday outside the illegal gambling parlor and social club on 43d Ave. in Corona.

Authorities said the 17-minute ordeal began when a six-member cleaning crew entered the locked club and found five gunmen. It ended when the hostage and two suspects were shot.

Emergency Service cops and hostage negotiators raced to the scene to surround the club, but Saeed Ahmad, a 26-year-old father of two, was dead.

Queens Detectives Chief Raymond Abruzzi said the gunmen, carrying semi-automatic weapons and walkie-talkies, were waiting in the club, possibly to ambush an employe coming in to empty two Joker Poker gambling machines. The machines can hold thousands of dollars when full.

The machines, however, held only $70.25, which led police sources to theorize that the robbers could have been after drug money. They said they had indications drugs had been sold at the club.

Worker escaped

One member of the cleaning crew escaped and flagged down police. The officers called for backup, and when two cops entered the club the suspects fired at them, police said.

At that point the gunmen scattered, with one going to the roof and two fleeing out the back. As more police units arrived, two gunmen fled through the front and burst into a building two doors down.

They dragged Ahmad from his home and pulled him down the street with a gun to his neck. The gunmen went toward a city bus and tried to board it. But driver Glenn Foertsch locked the doors and told his three riders to hit the floor.

The suspects tried to force Ahmad into a car, but he resisted and was shot.

"I can't get it out of my head," Foertsch said. "To see a human life taken like that without reason, it's just awful."

After Ahmad was shot, his killers ran down the block. One of them emptied a 15-shot clip from his 9-mm. pistol before cops fatally shot him.

He was identified as Raphael Mendez, 21, of 100th St. in Queens.

Victor Rodriguez, 26, of 113th St., Queens, the other suspect holding Ahmad, was wounded in the neck and back. He was listed in stable condition at City Hospital Center at Elmhurst.

e a human life taken hat without reason, it's wful.'

Bus driver Glenn Foertsch

rthouse shootout in Calif.

ir — A man who attemptrthouse metal detector

Pruty sheriff's yesterday

three, and was then

e, authorities said.

San Salisbury, 36, of San

San A court hearing in

One deputy was hit in the leg, another was hit in the hand and a third was grazed by a bullet after Salisbury was stopped in the courthouse foyer when he tried to go around a metal detector, authorities said.

Salisbury was

Seeed Ahmad

Gunm

kill m

& dre

By HELEN PETERS

Daily News Staff Writer

A hard-working handyman was in ment apartment w men broke down h took him hostage ar his dream of a better his family who had j grated from Pakistan

Saeed Ahmad, 26, the United States fi hope. He had steadily a neighborhood g good friends and his 2-year-old son had joi from his native Pakis five months ago. He a the father of a newborn

But it all came to a ing end Tuesday evenin

Two frantic gunmen fl the scene of a social clu bery broke into his bas apartment on 43d Ave. rona, dragged him int street and shot him a tried to escape, said spokesman Detective J McConville.

Ahmad lived in a two frame house — just a doors from the social cl with three other fam from his hometown of hore, Pakistan.

Yesterday, six of friends met a steady str of mourners from the com nity and talked about Ah as a kind and gentle man first settled in Queens years ago.

Three years ago he marri a woman from his hometo Afia Saeed, and worked h to bring her to the U.S.

"He was here yesterd We had been enjoying tea i was in this room at 4 o'clock said Imdad Baig, 42, a cu driver who lives in the hou

Yesterday, Baig pointed to the splintered plywood doo that the gunmen ha smashed. He said he watche helplessly from the fron