Introduction:

“The term Feminism came about shortly after men wrote negative stories about Women in the Bible, Chauvinism came about shortly after some Women began to behave in those ways...lol”

-Ernest N Paquin-

“Time, Space, Gravity and Physics all share the same traits; They do not cheat, they do not lie and they do not play favorites, Karma's useful elements one could say...”

-Ernest N Paquin-

“There is no Devil and there is no Hell, It's just that the idea for either is both enchanting & entertaining which sounded good at the time of their first mentioning...”

-Ernest N Paquin-

“-Having quite the Imagination- is the most common term applied when others mock you for thinking any bigger than they want you to...”

-Ernest N Paquin-

“God, or if it makes it easier to accept, an intelligent being would not allow anything good to exist in this Universe with all these known hazards already in place, something had to have changed all that and put them there...”

-Ernest N Paquin-

“Atom & Eve is a scientific misfortune best explained as if it were a religious consequence sacrificing one in return for others to know more...”

-Ernest N Paquin-

“Lady Karma is recognized by many as an existing aggressive echo that forwards consequences through fairness in the absence of God, who must be captured in human form somewhere else time and endures as we do...”

-Ernest N Paquin-

“In human form even God would be compromised somewhat mentally, physically, emotionally and even religiously...it would then make it easier to rebel against him wouldn't it?”

-Ernest N Paquin-

“Visions come from the past, the future or even the present time one is in, they could very well be trauma experienced by others letting us know what happened to them, why and how to recover from the wounds...”

-Ernest N Paquin-

“To fool all and everything in the Universe and to keep them guessing, change everything all at once in the very next second...a Big Bang can do just that,”

-Ernest N Paquin-

“This reality would not allow any idea to exist if there weren't at least some truth to it...”

-Ernest N Paquin-

“Your body and mind get wounded, your Soul I'll bet does not...it's always going to stay a pure, healthy, radiant energy that the eye cannot see but all agree is there, Angels are pure, healthy, radiant energies as well which is no coincidence...”

-Ernest N Paquin-

“We must still be in Heaven which is now in ruins because no Bible says we're not, what one author says is; rebellious Angels were cast out of Heaven, another adds that; they were cast out here, which could very easily mean that we're still in Heaven now in ruins and the Great Rebellion still continues...”

-Ernest N Paquin-

“Jesus remained sinless his whole life, proving to the world that it can be done, meaning everything else can too...”

-Ernest N Paquin-

Many people have had at least 1 vision in their life I'll bet. Some are fortunate enough to have a premonition, and some they say have been diagnosed and anchored by delusions. To me they all seem to leak out or rupture due to some kind of trauma which in turn sharpens perception. That being the ability to perceive and/or receive audio and visual transmissions from somewhere else, somewhere else in time even.

When trauma is induced either all of the emotions kick-in at the same time and you become more aware now and you then have a balanced enlightening episode, that's called Divine Torment. Or Mortal Torment which is; when none of the emotions work at all. Some may call that person a better-off-dead or compromised soul. Not much good has come from one while they're compromised, if any good at all. All of their episodes escape with a variety of unpleasantries only.

A vision showed me that (Atom & Eve) are one in the same person and/or entity. The Bible say's she is to blame for all of history's misfortunes which began with the fallout from the Garden of Eden incident. The wanting to know of Good and Evil, the Bible says.. However, the word Eve is defined as; the moment preceding a certain event, time before anything... Why would a name like Eve be branded on any being when it's own meaning is before anything bad happened and not what would follow? Also, the same vision showed me that no one being was interested in knowing what Evil was and knowledge of it was merely the result of an innocent misfortune. By accident as it were.

The accident I mentioned is of another vision which I'll briefly explain. Followed by several other visions as well as evidence that still exists that will tie everything together with the other books and manuscripts I've written.

Here is one vision of how Atom & Eve came about;

A time travel accident initiated in the future crash landed back in time in the Garden of Eden unleashing radioactive fallout. This could very well be the Big Bang science speaks of that created this version of the Universe, Heaven now in ruins. It instantly captured every living thing, including Angels, in some kind of organic life form all throughout time, that being future, present and past histories.

Within the very same second everything and it's surroundings where changed, displaced in other times and disrupted, all memory of still being in Heaven had been physically suppressed now. Gravity and the atmosphere were certainly different but all living things adjusted instantly all within the very same second. And if you were to think about it, a Big Bang can certainly cause this much disruption and change and even more so if it wanted to.

The Bible says that once Eve handed Adam the apple to eat of it, and he did so, there was the loud thunderous voice of God who then cast them out of the Garden of Eden and placed a Cherubim with a flaming sword at the mouth of the garden so no one should enter again. A big enough bang would very much sound like a loud thunderous voice or roar now wouldn't it?

However, the sound barrier had to have been compromised as well after the initial contamination occurred to make it as if this delayed roar or thunderous voice came after they ate of the apple and was adapted as if it greatly disappointed God. Also, the Bible doesn't mention anything about all else remaining in the Garden after the incident and forbidden to leave now does it? Perhaps all that remained inside were quarantined due to radioactive fallout in the immediate area.

Out of respect for the Bible always, read of this possible scenario ;

Eve could have very much unwittingly picked a piece of this contaminated fruit, a result of the ongoing fallout, and ate of it. Seeing that it had an ungodly foul, sharpened taste to it she innocently enough handed it to Adam and ask him why the fruit now tasted like it did. Adam did taste of it and he became both aware of it's now foul taste and also that the reality they were now in was different. Eve realized that as well and was then accused of maliciously tempting Adam and took the weight and blame for everything , the rest is history.

Atom is symbolic to Science, Eve is symbolic to Religion. If you were to join them together as if it were a troubled relationship, who do you think would take the glory for goodness and who do you think would take the fall for wickedness? Just doesn't sound right does it?

Too much of the truth never does...

We were all kids once, and we had some other kids provoke and tease us into doing something foolish. Just so the other kids could see the results of what it was we did.

Another Atom & Eve scenario could very well have involved Great rebellious Angels who banded together shortly after being captured in human form is;

Knowing things were different now, and knowing the location of the accident that released radioactive fallout, these rebellious Angels simply encouraged and/or baited others into tasting the fruit in the garden which now had an obvious hardened Red glow over it. Just to see what would happen and to learn by those who did, the use of a lone male and a female for example. In this day and age they're called scientific trials and/or test subjects.

Scientist throughout history have been studying the cause and effects of chemicals and substances on both man and animals, the use of them too if you will. They have also been exploring the possibilities of time travel, why do you think that is?

The effects of the Atom & Eve incident in the Garden of Eden continues to carry vast distances, time being the greatest distance. Carries like a Great Echo I'll bet. I have read recently that Scientists claim another Big Bang is coming that will wipe out every living thing in existence. But they add it is not for another billion years or so. Many of us know for certain that once you're thought up you're always going to exist, somewhere. So another Big Bang may very well cancel out the original one that changed and disrupted the Universe we're in now, and restore Heaven to it's paradise theme with no limitations and warmth and light everywhere.

Time Travel is the most adventurous way to restore everything and free us all finally from knowledge of Evil and it's memories. However, there are many fail-safes that will work as well. Remember;

“If you can think it, someone can do it...History has taught us that.”

-Ernest N Paquin-

Also, The origin of the Devil is a myth, someone made him up. How he tricked Eve into tempting Adam sounded good and made sense at the time of it's first mentioning...and it took.

All Religious sects and cults sound good and made sense to a promising individual and/or candidate at the time of it's first mentioning to them as well and it took.

You either become tempted then compromised and then brainwashed, or;
Compromised then tempted, then brainwashed, or;

Brainwashed then compromised and then tempted.

This reality we're now in is as worse as it gets. Also, others including scientists are certain when they speak of existing alternate realities, perhaps it's because we're in one that prevents us from knowing any better. Kinda like a suspenseful, mystery thriller, with most of everything not wanted to know of in the credits...we're curious.

Why did the time travel accident happen in the first place that triggered the Big Bang and changed and disrupted everything in the Universe and placed Heaven in ruins?

Many people have claimed to have had outer body experiences with evidence to support it. Hovering above looking down at their own bodies then being whisked away through a tunnel entering a pleasant realm with light and warmth everywhere. Certain it was Heaven they visited. Or they simply escaped this false reality and re-entered the true one briefly. I believe them.

What if there was such a thing as an inner body experience that lasts a lifetime with evidence to support that? Science hasn't exactly been able to explain how anything was created, Religion however doesn't explain why creation began, but explains with a vague effort as to how.

There seems to be many levels of creation with a variety of creativities. If God created us than who created God, and then who created the creators that created God who then created us, and so and so on...

Each level has either more complex unanswerable how's and why's, or they're even more simple than the level our known mankind is at right now and we feel abandoned and left with all the harder questions to answer. Simplicity is a major key to being able to both understand and explain everything. So why was an organic life form created?

I explained how physical living things were captured in some kind of mortal organic life form. The Big Bang is the culprit that takes credit and/or responsibility for that. The radioactive fallout in the Garden of Eden that would go on to contaminate everything is blamed on a time travel mishap.

The purpose behind the Big Bang was for us to engage in this now known physical reality we are in, alternate than the way Heaven once was. To feel life within each and every existence, this one at the moment. The contamination of the fruit part was to softly introduce us to Knowledge of Evil and/or

Knowledge of indifferences.

God, and perhaps his creators have experienced every form of realities I'll bet, so it's seemed suitable for every angel now captured in human form to do so. I'll also add that, soon after this Great change with human limitations took place, again I say, is when many angels banded together and began a Great Rebellion against God. God had to have been captured in human form as well and displaced somewhere else further in time far from the Garden of Eden incident, and far enough from the beginning for this Great Rebellion to begin.

You would think a Big Bang would create a violent Great change with immense pain, blood and gore, but it had to have been within the very same second so no pain would be involved. Only memory of still being in Heaven now in ruins hurt enough with mortal limitations now. The radioactive fallout and a variety of contaminations would cause mental, emotional and physical deformities starting with the next generation and continue on with the use of a great damaging echo.

I'd like to add, in human form God didn't see a Great Rebellion coming in the known beginning, because he wasn't there. As I mentioned because he was displaced somewhere else further in time

Now being in Human form God's dreams and nightmares were easy free access to every living thing as well. That's how one could tap into Knowledge of Evil, since it is written that God was the only being who knew of it in the first place. In human form every one and everything is vulnerable, most of all when they are sleeping or are enduring some kind of ongoing trauma and their guard is down.

(Science has proven that some humans have the ability to read another persons thought, good can do this and warn others. Wicked people do this as well, serial killers and every sexual predator are notorious with that talent, and it stands to reason that they cheat with this method allowing them to know when and where their victims are going to be alone next...it's never just random or lucky with them.)

The accident had to have happened for every angel to experience every kind of reality, I mentioned this already. The one we're in now just happens to be in human or humanoid form if you were to also take into account all life elsewhere in the Universe. All Angels now without wings one can say. God wasn't going to let us go through this reality by ourselves so he allowed himself to be captured as well. It also happens to be this reality which is now host to Knowledge of Evil, as our luck would have it.

Bad Angels want to keep the Great Rebellion going, attacking and influencing every generation and all walks of life. The Good Angels want all wickedness gone throughout the entire Universe, and they have to defend themselves and warn and protect their own kind every second. Some believe when all is said and done the Good Angels go to Heaven and the Bad ones end up in Hell. That sounds like mankind in human form is picking who is on who's side and playing favorites. Several men have had the idea to conquer Heaven now in ruins the same way by playing favorites as well but they were always stopped. The strong notion I have is that there is no Hell and every soul makes it back to Heaven when the Great Change is undone in that sense. Not one soul will remember anything, especially the pleasures from Knowledge of Evil.

This battle or war in this world, as well as other worlds too I'm guessing, is to allow every Angel to experience what it is like to be their own independent god. Many of them believe this, by themselves and in charge of their own lives, but as a mortal. You know, knowing all of what God knows in human form. Opposed to when they were in angelic form before and knew only of good. Being your own god isn't easy I imagine, as a mortal that is. I'm mean, the true God in human form would also be limited and at first only knew what the average human being would know of. As time moved forward he would continue to learn and know more and more wouldn't he?

What sounds more intimidating; a group of rebellious angels in human form banded together to conquer Heaven now in ruins, or a group of independent mortal gods with a variety of talents that share in the same one-dimensional agenda?

I mention that every living thing is a little compromised, they're not quite right anymore. No one's perfect, we all heard that before. The idea I mentioned that some of mankind has been playing favorites is indeed a futile effort, no one can pull it off, no sect or cult can either. No bad Angel will be cast into a Lake of fire . God wouldn't create something and then cast it aside because he was aware they were either brainwashed/ and or compromised. Besides, there are far worse things you can do to a wicked soul and that is to strip them of all knowledge of evil and wickedness and every sadistic pleasure that went along with it. More importantly erase all memory of these very same things, and then continue to exist with no more added memories of what once was and never ever be made aware of what once was.

Ecclesiastes Chapter 1 verse 11 reads, there will be no remembrance of former things, neither shall there be any remembrance of things that are to come with those that shall come after... -The Holy Bible-

Echoes

Each act of wickedness has it's origin. Aside from the original ones, or perhaps not, individuals have been baited and/or groomed to commit them. The use of them targeted at others one could say. There are those that finally submit to the pressure of the elements involved and are aimed at specific hand picked individuals wanted out of the way by Great Rebellionists, a third party cult being just that.

Whereas other cults and sects assume the credit and are also granted mysteriousness and bragging rights, which then appeal to millions of others that are compromised with beliefs and are attracted by these same cults and sects.

Anyway, each act of wickedness is a copycat that has been acted out through time. Someone raped another several centuries or even thousands of years ago and the act has been repeated many millions of times over. The original act echoed through time and not only enticed predators throughout time but captured many victims along the way, and still hasn't stopped going on and on.. That very same act pings off of this worlds atmosphere and continues to sacrifice victims as if we were trapped here with it, and in a brutal sense we are. In essence, we are trapped with every act of ongoing wickedness, an inescapable echo at present.

The third party cult I mentioned does hand pick select candidates, however, it's also very much aware that most if not all of them are cursed at the time by adolescence and one-dimensionalism. You only see what they want you to see, which is more than most victims, and as with any curse they are hard to undo or break even. Unless you manage to make it back to the time of the Garden of Eden incident.

They offer the effects of the curse are merely emotionally lessened. Also, these soon to be initiated candidates, whether they are aware of it or not, are always seen as potential threats, always. After use of them is exhausted then all ties are cut and they either conveniently die or are released back into our mainstream of misfortunes. A cursed world captured in a variety of echoes.

Every angel now in human form eventually will make it back to Heaven I say again. When everything is undone and set right it will be as if they had never left. This change back will too take place in the very next second freeing us from human form along with memory of it. It will also release gravity's vice and contamination leaving us bound by nothing once again. Wickedness undone.

Rebellious angels are very much aware of this as well and garner as many victims as they can and indulge in as much earthly pleasures as they can before they physically die and can no longer do so. This is why they want to keep this Rebellion going, cause if reincarnation is true then they are simply reborn again and will knowingly engage in earthly pleasures once more.

Some spiteful angels will wreak havoc and harm or kill as many as they can without conscience and then take their own life because they know there is no Hell. They believe we're in it. If they are reincarnated they will have a new identity when they are born again along with new set of fingerprints if you will. That's the belief.

(I know that sounds a bit far-fetched but it is a possible, spiteful way of being...no different than flying a plane into a building killing thousands of souls and believing God forgives all. Brainwashing and being emotionally compromised have acted like temptable accelerants in doings like this.)

Somewhere in The Bible it reads; “There is no mercy for the wicked”, Many offer onto that, “while they are wicked, there is always time for regret and change...” When a person is physically dead technically as we see of this they are no longer wicked.

“Even if it is true and this Satan character was cast out of Heaven however long ago and somehow entered this world back then, he is stuck there, yes he will naturally move forward in time from where he is, but we will also move forward in time from where we are which is now, and I’m certain that he cannot catch up to us because we are separated by so much time from him, and all that time equals a great distance, you see, there cannot be just one lone Devil who still acts alone and has throughout all of known history, but there are wicked people who have acted out and still do...”

-Ernest N Paquin-

Time Travel

I am both afflicted and hounded with what I call daymares which are vivid and clear audio and visual images which are just like memories but haven't happened in my current life as I know it. I know I'm not the only one who has gotten them in their lives I'll bet so I know I'm not alone. I was under the impression their could be past life experiences like reincarnation and my soul remembered. As of late though, Time travel could have been the culprit all along and changed my path in life and my soul remembers both existences. Simply put, I remember the life I once lived and the people in it, and also the life now when they are not. Odd huh?

An echo of what has happened to you as if it never were, but residue of audio and and visual imagery still haunts us – kinda goes along with the phrase “your next life will be better” meaning the one you're living now with added changes to it, opposed to the one you lived once already.

If you were to ask enough people if they had a time machine would they go back and change something in their lives would they? I'm guessing enough of them would say yes to that which would equal the theory that they remembered the way paradise was before the Big Bang changed everything into the way this reality is now. It could very well lead them all into realizing that a time travel accident occurred which triggered the Big Bang which released radioactive fallout which then carry vast distances and contaminated and mutate everything throughout known history after the Garden of Eden incident. Which also equal out to be the vague description in the Bible of this very same incident. Described at best by people back then who truly couldn't explain exactly how and why the Garden of Eden incident occurred, they failed to use the right words which would've made easier for all of us in the future to know what they meant. Us now could have explained it easier to them then, than they could have explained to us now. An open mind, deductive logic and studying evidence that still exists helps unblanket a lone theory and continues to uncover facts and truths.

This Third Party Cult I speak of exists, we all now of this. One key to their success is to either bait someone into something wrong by first compromising their emotions. They succeed at this often and they then instigate another into preying upon a now compromised individual giving rise to a conflict. Once this conflict is touched off and echoes into the immediate future these compromised beings attack each other and the instigator leaves the scene and is safely hidden in the past. As a metaphor; they disappear around the nearest corner without being identified by either a compromised soul, or all the others who are witness to the conflict.

Since some believe that God did not want us to go through this reality in human form alone and was captured as well, it stands to reason that both Good and Evil angels want very much for God to be on their side. And if God couldn't tell the difference at first it would be quite a struggle.

The good angels would want God to take part in reversing or undoing the time travel misfortune long ago in the Garden of Eden, whereas the rebellious angels would want God to favor them and this selfish one-dimensional reality as it is. If God now in human form refuses they would then either want him immobilized and confused as it were but kept alive, cause if God were to die while in human form he would simply take all knowledge of wickedness away with him and put it somewhere where he wouldn't even know of it anymore seeing it was a bad idea for all angels to know of. No more rebellious juvenile unrest ever again. This is most likely why they haven't killed God yet.

Note: An other idea is; The Big Bang (quite possibly) had enough force to knock some of us angels out of Heaven capturing us in this reality here, and still some of us are trying to reverse or undo the damage that we feel left behind in, while others want to keep it this way, - the physical and mental trauma caused by the Big Bang corrupted each of their conscience (or allowed them free will to rid themselves of it) leaving them quite selfish and of course one-dimensional.

These Echoes that I refer too are very much real, and they seem to possess if you will every living thing. For example; Ever since the very first murder, documented or not, some living things after that have murdered as well. The electrical impulse that triggered these murders throughout history traveled through time and appears to seek out and hand select the murderers. Millions, perhaps billions of both man and creature that have suffered and died by this same hand and act, were all caught in the same inescapable echo that had carried a vast distance up until the present day and will continue into tomorrow and even further. Time is the greatest distance. The original act of murder was just that, original, all the other acts that have followed are the result of the echo of it. In essence, if there was no first act of murder then logic would suggest that there would never have been any acts of murder throughout history. The first act of murder only happened after we were all captured in human form. The Bible points out; this first act occurred some time after man was cast out of the Garden of Eden, not before.

Mock; verb; to laugh at or make fun of, to disappoint the hopes of , ridicule, taunt, deride...

In this Rebellion, or if you were made aware that you were on The Road less Traveled, many thing seems familiar. For instance being mocked along the way, taunted also. While on this path if you were to state something sincerely and it was heard, then you would be mocked every time you stated the opposite of what you originally said, or anything relevant to it. The Great Rebellionists will use the Ten Commandments against you as well if you were to break one. For instance; the 9th Commandment say's; Thou shall not bare false witness against thy neighbor. Which many believe means do not lie about someone. If you were targeted by these rebellionists they would either bait you into baring false witness or lie about someone, or wait til' your emotions become compromised and you vent aloud freely. They lay in wait for either to occur so they can lash out in return and crucify you so to to speak.

They will then taunt you and mock aloud that it was Karma that aloud them to inflict consequences upon you. Yes, they mock everything around you, they're even bold enough to mock Karma herself...

I'll keep adding to this manuscript as time goes on.
