“All warfare is based on deception. Hence, when we are able to attack, we must seem unable; when using our forces, we must appear inactive; when we are near, we must make the enemy believe we are far away; when far away, we must make him believe we are near.”

“Appear weak when you are strong, and strong when you are weak.”

“If you know the enemy and know yourself, you need not fear the result of a hundred battles. If you know yourself but not the enemy, for every victory gained you will also suffer a defeat. If you know neither the enemy nor yourself, you will succumb in every battle.”

“Supreme excellence consists of breaking the enemy’s resistance without fighting.”

“The wise warrior avoids the battle.”

HUMAN RIGHTS VIOLATIONS

In this chapter, the reader will explore the recent chain of events that led to the reality we live in today and how the world sees the indigenous race. I only selected the important pieces to put together a picture that will at least explain the present conditions of America; horrors, deception, and coercion will be witnessed in this chapter. In order to obtain the answers you are seeking, you must take a trip to the subconscious America to reveal information that has been hidden for centuries. Many innocents have died to keep this information going, but it will be up to you to decipher the information being presented to you.

From their nakedness, Columbus inferred the native people to be an inferior race. Columbus wrote of the Indians he encountered, “They all go around as naked as their mothers bore them; and also the women.” However, he noted that “they could easily be commanded and made to work, to sow and to do whatever might be needed, to build towns and be taught to wear clothes and adopt our ways.” Although Columbus also wrote that “they are the best people in the world and above all the gentlest,” his record of the first encounter between Europeans and New World Indians was filled with accounts of enslavement, murder, and rape. (Legends of America, n.d.)

1524

On July 8, the first kidnapping in America took place. Florentine explorers kidnapped an Indian child to bring to France. (Legends of America, n.d.)

1528

On April 16, the first significant exploration of Florida occurred when Spanish soldier, explorer, and Indian fighter Panfilo de Narvaez saw Indian houses near what is now Tampa Bay. Narvaez claimed Spanish royal title to the land. (Legends of America, n.d.)

1540

Francisco Vasquez de Coronado led Mexico's invasion of the north with an expeditionary force of 300 conquistadors and more than one thousand Indian "allies." When they reached Cibola, they found not the promised metropolis but "a little, crowded village, looking as if it had been crumpled all up together." This was the Zuni Pueblo of Hawikuh, whose warriors answered with arrows when Coronado demanded that they swear loyalty to his King. Within an hour, the Spaniards overran the pueblo, and over the next few weeks, they conquered the other Zunis in the region.

Coronado moved his camp to the upper Rio Grande, where his soldiers confiscated one pueblo for winter quarters and looted the surrounding pueblos for supplies. During this operation, a Spaniard raped an Indian woman, and when Coronado refused to punish him, the Indians retaliated by stealing horses. Lopez de Cardenas attacked the thieves' pueblo, captured 200 men and methodically burned them all at the stake. (Legends of America, n.d.)

Faced with an incipient uprising, Francisco Vasquez de Coronado ordered an attack on Moho pueblo, a center of Indian resistance. His men were repulsed when they tried to scale the walls, so they settled in for a siege that lasted from January through March. At last, when the Moho tried to slip away, the Spaniards killed more than 200 men, women and children in a massacre that pacified the region. (Legends of America, n.d.)

1542

Under pressure from religious leaders, especially the Dominican friar Bartolome de Las Casas, Spanish Emperor Carlos V attempted to impose "New Laws" on the Spanish colonies, ending the encomienda system that gave settlers the right to Indian slave labor. (Legends of America, n.d.)

1546

The "New Laws" barring Indian enslavement were repealed at the insistence of New World colonists, who developed a society and economy dependent on slave labor. (Legends of America, n.d.)

CHAPTER 2

AMERICAN & INTERNATIONAL LAWS

This chapter will introduce the reader to many laws and treaties that were made without the public's knowledge. I have hand-picked these laws and treaties to show the thousands upon thousands of contradictory statements and their codes. The reader is once again encouraged to conduct their own research to gain better insight into the entries discussed within this book. The purpose of this information is to help the reader find the hidden meaning behind the events that took place throughout history, and to address the wrongful and harmful activities that have been done to our ancestors that are considered the root cause of today's struggle to survive in the United States.

“Since we have formulated these things with all possible accuracy and attention, the sacred and universal synod decreed that no one is permitted to produce, or even to write down or compose, any other creed or to think or teach otherwise. As for those who dare either to compose another creed or even to promulgate or teach or hand down another creed for those who wish to convert to a recognition of the truth from Hellenism or from Judaism, or from any kind of heresy at all: if they be bishops or clerics, the bishops are to be deposed from the episcopacy and the clerics from the clergy; if they be monks or layfolk, they are to be anathematised.” (Tanner, n.d.)

- In July of 1213, King John was absolved of excommunication, at Winchester, by the returned Archbishop of Canterbury, Langton. On October 3, 1213, by treaty, King John ratified his surrender of his kingdoms to the Pope, as Vicar of Christ who claimed ownership of everything and everyone on earth as tradition.

The Pope has ordered the genocide and enslavement of millions of people. (Castanha, 2001)

1582

Pope Gregorius (Gregory XIII) introduced the Gregorian calendar to the world. But the calendar is incorrect due to the 13 moon cycle. The Egyptians, Druids, Incas, Polynesians (etc.) and even the Mayans (which had the most complex and correct calendar in history) used the 13 Moons (Months) calendar. CHAPTER 3

UNITED SNAKES OF AMERICA

This chapter was something I was struggling to reveal because the information is encrypted. With past events from my own journey within this rigged system and historical events that changed the way this society operates, the detailed files herein disclose the traps that many indigenous peoples face when being employed, traveling, owning their homes to something as simple as a birth certificate. It is here you will obtain the knowledge from the central banks and governments on what they see, what a citizen of the USA really stands for and why there is a “GOD” that they trust.

1513

In May, Ponce de Leon encountered Calusa Indians while exploring the Gulf Coast of Florida near Charlotte harbor. In a fight with the Calusa, de Leon captured four warriors. (Legends of America, n.d.)

1626

Peter Minuit, a Dutch colonist, buys Manhattan island from Native Americans for 60 guilders (about $24) and names the island New Amsterdam. (Legends of America, n.d.)

1732

The real name of the first President of the United States was not Washington. His baptismal name was George, and he was born Feb. 22 in the year 1732. The old colony of Virginia was his birthplace, but the true name of his male ancestors was not Washington. This may seem a sweeping statement in the light of generally accepted history, but careful research has established beyond doubt that the ancient founder of the family from which came the Father of our Country was named William De Hertburn. The key to this apparent paradox lies in the fact that, in common with many noblemen and monarchs of Europe, the first President possessed an estate name and a real, or family name, the latter being known as the patronymic, or paternal name. CHAPTER 4

IN AMERICA WE TRUST

This chapter will reveal the hidden knowledge that is in plain sight. Most of us who were taught in schools for a quarter of our lives were dumbed down and used as pawns for the governmental complex by design. The government stole this republic from previous generations resulting this paradox we live in today; the government sees themselves as the parents of its citizens. This chapter will explain why Americans today are psychologically unstable and why the morals in this country are totally broken. It is clear that most Americans are the bots of this technological age and soon will be replaced by Artificial Intelligence. It is here, in this chapter, the indigenous race will see the blueprint of how and when their people were controlled.

“The attention of this company has been drawn to a paragraph from the Washington Star of the 30th ult., giving an account of some examination made at the Treasury Department as to the evidence of the surreptitious impression of a genuine plate, used by the counterfeiter in printing the backs of the spurious one hundred dollar compound interest note, having been taken after or before the plates and dies prepared by the American Bank Note Company were delivered by that company to the Treasury Department.” (GEO. W. HATCH, President, 1865)

“In our dreams, people yield themselves with perfect docility to our molding hands. The present education conventions of intellectual and character education fade from their minds and unhampered by tradition we work our own good will upon a grateful and responsive folk. We shall not try to make these people or any of their children into men of learning or philosophers, or men of science. We have not to raise up from them authors, educators, poets or men of letters, great artists, painters, musicians, nor lawyers, doctors, statesmen, politicians, creatures of whom we have ample supply. The task is simple. We will organize children and teach them in a perfect way the things their fathers and mothers are doing in an imperfect way.” (General Education Board by John D. CHAPTER 5

ABORIGINAL NATIVE AMERICANS & ITS IRREFUTABLE PROOF

This chapter will reveal who the true rightful heirs are to America. Deception runs deep on identities of every culture in America, but a few Indigenous Americans managed to retain their ancient knowledge to be passed on to future generations. The true ancestors are here and are awaking individuals every day, revealing to those that once thought their ancestors were sold from the motherland to the Americas as actually a fabricated story.

The Moors, who ruled Spain for 800 years, introduced new scientific techniques to Europe, such as an astrolabe, a device for measuring the position of the stars and planets. Scientific progress in Astronomy, Chemistry, Physics, Mathematics, Geography and Philosophy flourished in Moorish Spain. (blackhistorystudies.com, 2009)

Historians agree that the Aztec capital city, Tenochtitlan was built about 1325 AD. That date a short series of events before 1325 do not exclude the Mali colonists and explorers who launched their two expeditions across the Atlantic Sea toward the Americas sometime between 1300 and 1312. (Butler, 2009)

October 11, 1492

Columbus' fleet consisted of only three vessels, the Nina, the Pinta, and the Santa Maria, and a crew of ninety men. Leaving port in August 1492, the expedition eventually passed the point where the sailors expected to find Japan, generating no small degree of anxiety, whereupon Columbus used every managerial skill he possessed to maintain discipline and encourage hope. The voyage had stretched to ten weeks when the crew bordered on mutiny, and only the Captain's reassurance and exhortations persuaded the sailors to continue a few more days. Finally, on October 11, 1492, they started to see signs of land: pieces of wood loaded with barnacles, green bulrushes, and other vegetation. A lookout spotted land, and on October 12, 1492, the courageous band waded ashore on Watling Island in the Bahamas, where his men begged his pardon for doubting him.

Columbus continued to Cuba, which he called Hispaniola. At the time he thought he had reached the Far East, and referred to the dark-skinned people he found in Hispaniola as Indians. He found these Indians very well formed, with handsome bodies and good faces, and hoped to convert them to our Holy Faith by love rather than by force by giving them red caps and glass beads and many other things of small value. 10 Dispatching emissaries into the interior to contact the Great Khan, Columbus scouts returned with no reports of the spices, jewels, silks, or other evidence of Cathay; nor did the khan send his regards. Nevertheless, Columbus returned to Spain confident he had found an ocean passage to the Orient (Allen, 2007)

They have remained hidden for more than five centuries, but tiny figures of naked men wearing feathered head-dresses could be the first Western depiction of Native Americans, the Vatican claims. The group of tiny figures was discovered during the restoration of a magnificent fresco, owned by the Vatican, which depicts Christ's Resurrection. The painting, by the Renaissance master Pinturicchio, was finished in 1494, just two years after Christopher Columbus first set foot in the New World. It has adorned the walls of the Borgia Apartments in the Vatican for 500 years but was only recently subjected to restoration work. The naked men, who appear to be dancing, were spotted by a restorer, Maria Pustka, as she removed centuries of grime. (Squires, 2013)

A copy of a 510-year-old map dubbed "America's birth certificate" because it gave the New World its name has been discovered by Christie's auction house. The two-dimensional globe was created in 1507 by pioneering German cartographer Martin Waldseemueller and could fetch £900,000 ($1.2 million) at auction. It is "the earliest piece of writing that uses the word America," Julian Wilson, a senior specialist in Christie's books department, said. A wall-map version of the same chart by Waldseemueller, purchased by the

THE TRUE PIONEERS THAT THE EDUCATION SYSTEM DO NOT WANT YOU TO KNOW ABOUT

The saying “Save the best for last”, is one you should look forward to and perhaps enable you to become a pioneer. This chapter will reveal individuals that are not taught in the public school system. The reader can use this chapter as a safe haven to get answers to the most critical aspects of life and could be corrected if the reader is motivated. It is here that you will obtain the knowledge from the greats and you will perhaps be motivated to teach others who will in turn become leaders within their own communities.

The First Battle of the American Revolution was at Concord Massachusetts on April 19th 1775. The first shot of that Battle has been called “The Shot heard around the world”. That first shot may have been fired by this man. Peter Salem Poor one of the original Boston Patriots who would go on to fight with George Washington throughout the rest of the American Revolution. (Crowell, 2017)

1781

- In 1781, John Hanson became the first President of the United States. George Washington was really the 8th President of the United States. Do not go checking the encyclopedia for this Hanson's name – he is one of those great men that are lost to history. If you are extremely lucky, you may actually find a brief mention of his name. The new country was actually formed on March 1, 1781 with the adoption of The Articles of Confederation. This document was actually proposed on June 11, 1776, but not agreed upon by Congress until November 15, 1777. Maryland refused to sign this document until Virginia and New York ceded their western lands (Maryland was afraid that these states would gain too much power in the new government from such large amounts of land). Once the signing took place in 1781, a President was needed to run the country. John Hanson was chosen unanimously by Congress (which included George Washington). In fact, all the other potential candidates refused to run against him, as he was a major player in the revolution and an extremely influential member of Congress.

As the first President, Hanson had quite the shoes to fill. No one had ever been President and the role was poorly defined. His actions in office would set precedent for all future Presidents. He took office just as the Revolutionary War ended. Almost immediately, the troops demanded to be paid. As would be expected after any long war, there were no funds to meet the salaries. As a result, the soldiers threatened to overthrow the new government and put Washington on the throne as a monarch. All the members of Congress ran for their lives, leaving Hanson as the only guy left running the government. He somehow managed to calm the troops down and hold the country together. If he had failed, the government would have fallen almost immediately and everyone would have been bowing to King Washington. In fact, Hanson sent 800 pounds of sterling silver by his brother Samuel Hanson to George Washington to provide the troops with shoes. Hanson, as President, ordered all foreign troops off American soil, as well as the removal of all foreign flags. This was quite the feat, considering the fact that so many European countries had a stake in the United States since the days following Columbus. Hanson established the Great Seal of the United States, which all Presidents have since been required to use on all official documents. President Hanson also established the first Treasury Department, the first Secretary of War, and the first Foreign Affairs Department. Lastly, he declared that the fourth Thursday of every November was to be Thanksgiving Day, which is still true today.

THE ABORIGINAL NATIVE AMERICAN MOOR INVENTORS

Although this chapter is short, it contains valuable information concerning the indigenous individuals that shaped our lives with their inventions. Many of these inventions were taken by the colonizer as their own. It is here in this chapter you will obtain the knowledge of the inventions that people take for granted not realizing it was an indigenous race who created most things in the first place. Even though this list is small in number, there are many inventions not known to the public that have not been discussed. The patent industry was specifically designed to omit the indigenous so that certain individuals who do not have the creative mind to improve human beings' way of life to profit royally.
