About RickthePoetWarrior

Rick's professional background includes freelancing IT skills, running retail stores, and dabbling in website creation—all of which left him “spiritually exhausted,” and led him to create his poetic alter ego, RickthePoetWarrior, to give voice to his viewpoints and promote his politics in an entertaining manner.

The poetry of RickthePoetWarrior makes frequent use of puns and creative wordplay, keeping the reader simultaneously hooked, amused, and eagerly anticipating the next unexpected turn of phrase.

RickthePoetWarrior's tone is often dark and cynical. He approaches topics with an offbeat, quirky and no-holds-barred viewpoint. Across the various volumes of his new releases, themes frequently include a distrust and dislike of government and big business alike, class struggles, and a sympathy for the downtrodden accompanied by spite for “TheRich.”

Consistent with his identity as a “warrior,” Rick does not simply rail against generalities. From top social media and tech companies (and their CEOs), to orange-haired Presidents of the United States, to politicians from his native Canada, and even to his homeland's most famous coffee and donuts purveyor, he names names. Yet, as a “poet warrior,” he wields words—albeit razor-sharp as sword. His vocabulary is sometimes salty, and always colorful.

The copyright page of each volume finishes with the kindly greeting, “Peace be with you.” Perhaps an unlikely greeting for a warrior—though RickthePoetWarrior is after all a poet, a thus an ultimately peaceful warrior. (And lest one be tempted to classify him as simply a wild-eyed political radical, recall his other works, including his collection of poems about flatulence).

“Despite my sarcastic and cynical attitude, I love people, and that is my motivation for writing,” says the poet. “That, and the thought that I might actually make them think about something besides themselves.”

RickthePoetWarrior doesn’t reserve all his barbs for the soft bellies of others—he’s prone to frequently turn the sword inward with self-deprecating humor. Of his audience he says, “they should be able to laugh at themselves, because that’s who I’m making fun of most of the time—us.”

The Usual Breaking News Story Title That's Lost Effect Due to Overuse of the Term 'Breaking News'

You may notice my style of including a (2nd voice)

A ((3rd voice))

And a <<<4th_voice>>>

There's the poem talking – then there's (me)

Then there's (("The Editor"))

(He's an ass)

And the <<<robo_people>>>

(They are also asses)

So you get four voices in one poem

All for a low price

That's double plus goood

O'well

(Get it?)*

((Ed.'s Note: See, the pun is the word low))

((Ed.'s Note: I'll always be here to help you))

((Ed.'s Note: Rick has issues (and emissions :)))

Pre-Poem Preparation

I include a 'Rictionary' before of the start of the main text to assist readers in understanding of my use of the terms

Rictionary

Book Bomb – A poem included from one of my other titles

Ceize-us – C.S.I.S., The Canadian Security Intelligent Service

Epub – File format for Nook ebook readers

Ewe – A female sheep, is you, the people, sheeple

Fie – Old English for falsehood, disgust

Mobi.kdf – An outdated standard that Amazon clings to in order to control documents through Digital Record Management

Nyet – Russian for “no” or at least I think that and I often use it for no, not yet, nonet

PBK – Paperback version

PDF – Postscript Document Format

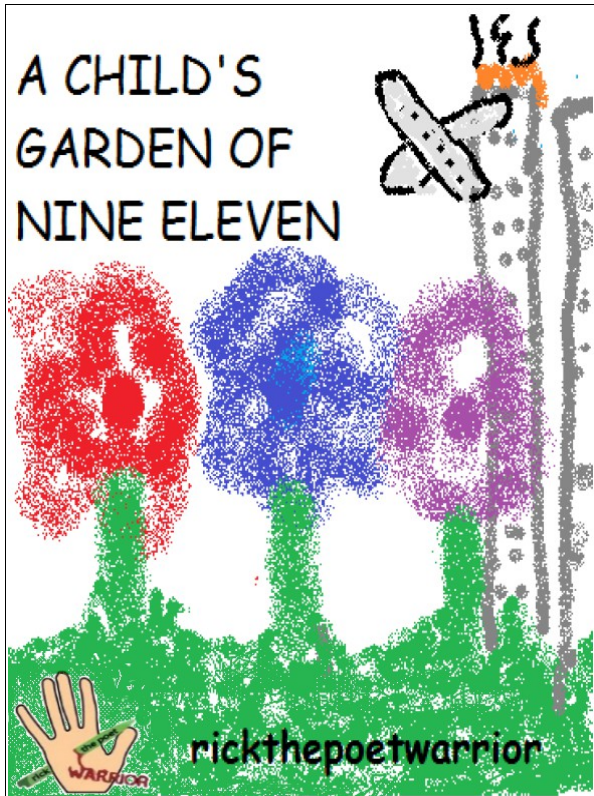

PDL – Postscript Document format Limited – a limited edition PDF distributed by me and only available to non-elites and military juntas. Also it's sort of like a writer's check mark because when you read PDL in the document ahead I'll know you know and won't have to respond to your annoying 'what does this mean' email. Don't try looking for a FAQ on some dweeb website. I didn't bother with that. You're lucky you got this note.

The citizens of Canada enjoy a high standard of living, well most of the 'proper' ones do. And for the majority they're granted social supports, political freedoms, and economic opportunities beyond the dreams of billions of earthlings.

Yet despite an abundance of resources, both natural and human, our political systems suffer the same fault as all closed power systems, corruption and 'systematic' cruelty (another dodge of personal responsibility).

Anyways, this Canadian poet got tired of it and wrote some verse for you to become 'awoke' eh!

Join the author as he re-imagines his journey to a Salmon Powwow in Victoria BC.

Told using indigenous characters as seen from his 'skinny-grizzly' point of view Rick does his best to represent the wisdom and fellowship along with the adventures he has with his friend Raven from the Okanagan peoples.

Selection from 'Brother Bear's Ramblings On Vancouver Island'

Raven and Bear in Victoria

This is true.

One day Raven and Bear were walking down Blanshard Street.

Bear rambled from side to side looking in bins, turning over doormats, and checking the curbs for something to smoke, drink, or eat.

“What are you doing?” said Raven. Raven was getting annoyed at having to stop and wait for Bear as they walked.

“Looking for tobacco,” said Bear, “I found some papers.”

Raven hopped up and down, impatient as usual.

“I’ll get you a cigarette.” Raven said, and hopped over to the first of the White-man he saw.

“Brother,” Raven said, “My friend needs a cigarette and I would like one too.” The White-man reached into his coat and gave Raven two cigarettes.

“Thanks.” said Raven, “Oh, and a light.” The White-man lit Raven’s cigarette, then he lit Bear’s.

“Oh, and perhaps enough to buy my friend a drink.” said Raven. The White-man reached into a pocket, produced twenty dollars, and gave it to Raven.

Now, you may think this strange that one of the White-man would give Raven so much. But Raven has the power of suggestion over all creatures.

Even the simple minded.

Celebrities, political figures, media heroes and shill.

In the playlists of 'all the world's a stage' there lies a species of human unique in it's need to feed on undeserved adulation.

Strange thing though, they're surrounded by a sea of willing and rambunctious adulators who feel themselves inadequate.

So it's really a book of satirical rhyme and prose about mirrors when you reflect on it.

Homeless, the new label for being poor, is one of society's oldest and constantly growing populations. What to do?

Well, just give them a 'home' 'somewhere else' so they won't roam in your backyard of course.

Then when the next round of economic disasters hits (by 'ovresight/glitch/or alcohol) TheRich will receive a better reward for their 'generosity'.

Anyways, there is one homeless man fighting back. Take this you non-homelessers.

“Rage, rage, against the dying of the light” is often quoted as an eulogy by Dylan for his father who was going blind. But it's the blindness that Seniors readily adopt that I'm talking about.

Look, you don't have to sit around watching a screen or staring through a window.

Hobble, crawl, walk or run to somewhere and do something.

If not then read this book and learn how to put yourself to good use.

Old age. Phooey!

Selection from 'How To Weaponize Your Seniors'

Before You Go Out The Door Checklist

Some uncommon terms used throughout the organization of this book SO YOU'LL KNOW WHAT THEY'RE SAYING.

A. Highlittler – The head of the organization. Also a nickname among the slower ranks for the latrine. (Big Shit is the common nickname for the leader)

Book Bomb – Unfortunately no, this book is not a bomb. It merely indicates I have included a poem from one of my other publications which is relevant to the topic

Convolunteersman/woman – A special agent of the O-range brigade whose mission is recruiting our heavily medicated senior population into happily going on a vacate-tion with the army

ICBM – InContinence Ballistic Missile, the main weapon of the Soiledair

IPAD – Incontinence pad

IPUU – Incontinence pad/underwear used

NOPALS – No One Palliative Assisted Living Seniors

O-pressers: Any of a number of government officials who feel the need to create or conduct a 'probe' into your personal situation. (After dealing with them you feel like you have been bent over and reamed)

OLDBALLS – A nickname of respected Soiledairs

PALS – Palliative/Assisted Living Seniors

PILLS – DON'T FORGET TO TAKE YOUR PILLS

POW – Prisoner Of War – don't worry about this. We don't need no stinking prisoners!

(The) SS – The Shortzstuffull – a respected and highly trained corp of Soiledairs with both political and military authority whose main mission is the proper carrying out of A. Highlittler's discharges in an orderly manner

Soiledair – A senior engaged in daily living activities inducted into the corps. This is the basic fighting unit and is highly appraised by those nearby

TNT – Tea 'n' Trolley. Part of the women's brigade armaments

Tearartist – A special unit of the Airmy trained to look like a grandmother or friendly old man. This unit infiltrates enemy positions and helps prepare for invasion by destroying enemies reconnaissance abilities

WMD – Weapons of Messy Disruptions

Selection from 'How To Weaponize Your Seniors'

The Physical Exam

Due to the natural deterioration of the human body and mind the standards for physical fitness and mental aptitude should be lowered accordingly. Basically, if you're breathing you're in.

Minimum Age Requirement

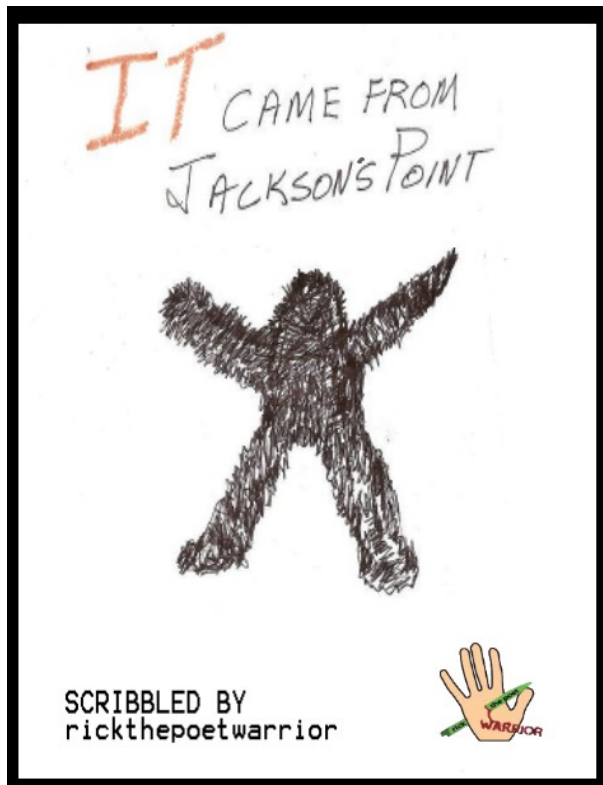

Be firm. 65 years or older. This will weed out those Freedom 55 wannabes trying to sneak in on all our fun. Also a lot of the O-pressers spies and agents are under 65 years as by then you realize what a knob you've been your whole life and self destruct by obtaining a pet to be 'the loved one'.

Height

Not required. Remember many of the recruits will be reporting for duty in a state of disrepair. Accurate height measurements may not be possible due to shoe lifts, missing limbs, replacement knee/hip, and continual weight loss.

Nestled in the heart of the Kootenay Mountains range of the Canadian Rockies lies the unique little village of Kaslo.

Avoided by the Indigenous as a cursed place the early European invaders paid no heed and settled in. How the aboriginals knew of the radioactive nature of the soil is still unknown to 'White Man' but this book isn't about that.

It's about the quirkiness of quaint attitudes, perhaps caused by the altitude or just the high airs many of the residents feel entitled to. Still, it is one heck of a tourist destination, deserving of this glowing praised penned in light-hearted fondness.

A bunch of lies, innuendos, half-truths and accusations with little credible or substantive proof of how to overturn/standby/retard a semi-workable economic system that has insidiously inured itself into everyday living in order to quicken the demise of the most desired outcome resulting in a flatter if not all together all round system of governance.

And if you understood that bullshit this book is for you. Just skip to the last page and don't forget your limited-edition decoder ring* to reveal the real message.

*$1,000,000 in small bills only please

Selection from 'Kill The Rich'CHAPTER: LANGUAGE AND LABELSAVOIDING BROKEN ANKLES

We have to agree on material world labels otherwise we'd be tripping over each other. Toss me that pillow or toss me that rock. And since there's so many things to label we end up with mega-lists to reference (at first dictionaries but now web search results). Sets of labels are filters by necessity. There's no one comprehensive set of infinite knowledge unless you want to subscribe to: 1. there already exists an entity that has infinite knowledge or 2. that we could create the same being because our concept of infinity is everything else we don't know anyways and I can just leave my computer unplugged and it would do that or 3. we could actively build it for something to do and just what the hell we're only a link in the chain anyways so don't be scared if we all turn into some cosmic form of energy in the end or just a pile of dust, you can win either way if you can keep yourself physically and mentally fit , have fun, enjoy your life and even get ready while you're here anyways.

*Caught that spelling mistake did you? Well, well aren't you quite the geni-ass. It's labels though it don't much matter if you know what I mean (Communications 101 basic principle).

COMMERCIALIZATION OF OUR LANGUAGE

Insidiously 'The Rich' are making our language a $ item so when your born they even want you to have to buy the right to use your name in the language.(birth certificate).It used to be that because we all agreed that a citizen needed a birth certificate that it was a 'not for profit' part of society. Welcome to the world of public private partnerships where profit replaces equality.

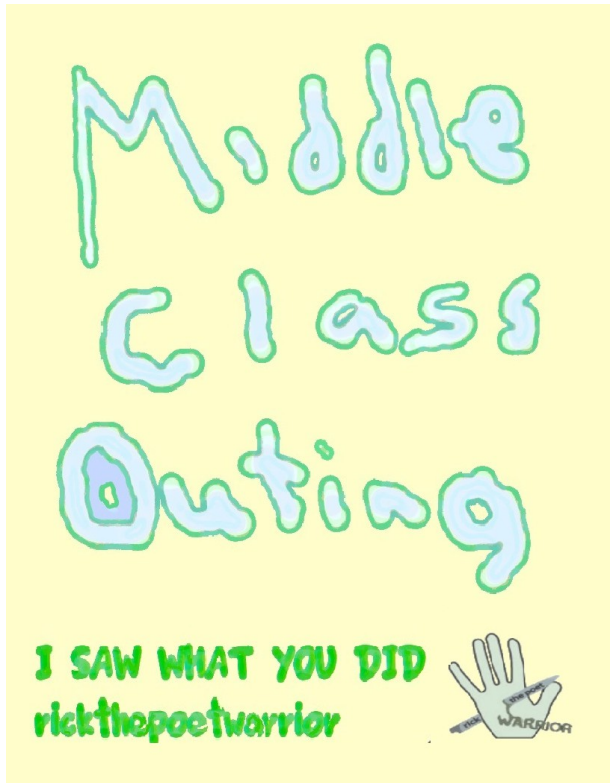

Branding is a method of controlling your mouth and therefore your thoughts. It makes for 'easy-think'. They brand your food, clothing, shelter, underwear and some of you even volunteer to have your dick branded (tattoo). That's their name on you Mr. Modern Label guy. (Nice suit. Is that a 'Vermincelli' your wearing).

The 'Editorial' is now one of the methods used by Corp.s to give their company the impression of having some life. Long diatribes (that's fancy speak for long-winded sentences) that seem to have no meaning. (note use of this style by me too ☺) and when you parse them out all they says is company good, you bad (have 'condition') and buy my crap. In the meantime you've read all this semi-official and moralistic crap about how they are doing too much already to help and gee we good company and you can be good too if you buy our product. I like the good old days when they just bought off the publishers and hid their agenda on the selected opinions printed on the 'public' 'free-speech' editorial page

What expires only to be reborn instantly? A fart of course.

Explore the external effects a fart can have on not only one poor poet but on the whole world. Talk about power!

In my briefs I've attempted to explore the lesser known subtleties and some of the broader implications of just letting one go.

I hope it smells as good to you as it does me. Enjoy. Yummy!

With an seemingly endless supply of potential populations, places, and pressures it was inevitable that the Olympic Management couldn't resist a stab at holding a charity event.

And this time instead of having the slums outside the walls and excluding the poor from events 'The Olympic Park' will be the slums and the poor are the event satisfying both socialists and capitalists in one hot switch and dump.

I was not a founding member but found myself at the start of the Occupy Movement in October of 2011. I was at 'The Designated Corer' bright and early along with "The Media". Lots of media and me. We waited. And waited.

More wait and then one of the many crews lolling about got a text that it had been moved to two blocks over and an hour later.

So off I went to occupy a spot in the Occupy Hall of Fame and Shame.

A little Pecorino this Taleggio of 'ould ...

Oh Romano, Romano, Wherefore Art Thou Romano

Asiago midst crumbled ruins;
Whence eyed that ancient Emmental:
Castle Roquefort;
Nay Neufchatel, nor Cottage's white warmth,
But aged Brick, Marbled red-yellow,
Cloaked in veined Gorgonzola;
Near whose mould Blue walls
Nay flower Gruyere.

Liveno there Italian noble Romano:
Not airy Swiss or flippant Monterey Jack he;
With bride maiden Pure
Whose Skim was as Cream,
A beauty beyond all com' Parmesan.

Life was Gouda;
Tilsit one Vailed Knight:
A Humboldt Fog hung Stilton air;
Horrors!
A Lincolnshire Poacher,
Camembert away his Dutchess.
Manchego!

"Oh cruel Fetas." he cried
 Tears flowed Fontainebleau;
 Havarti to Provolone his true love?
 Yes. He would Go at once to free her:
 As soul Processed by demon Wheys;
 To Leyden the Trappe Veritable;
 Thus send Curworthy foe to its Greve.
 Brave Chevre he'll thus be shown.

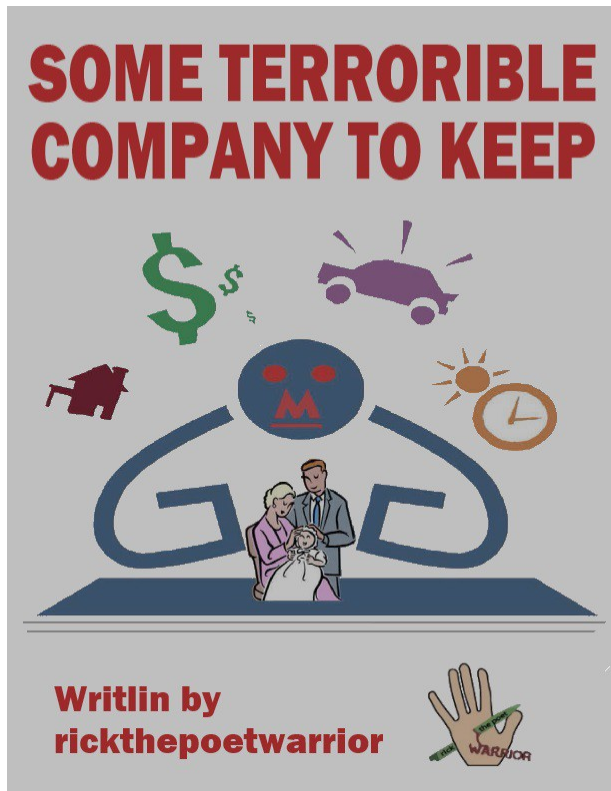

Alas,
 When he Cojita the Muenster,
 It went Pourly;
 He Pule out too soon and Doppelganger;
 And so in Curds his own demise.

Business and ethics have long been uneasy bedfellows. Nothing has changed.

TheRich always co-opt our institutions and organizations, turning them into facades to enforce social and political norms crafted to their needs, regardless of the harm to the environment or the people that inhabit it.

This leads to such inhumane and irresponsible absurdities such as letting Elon Musk wastefully throw a Rolls Royce into outer space while he pays lower class workers starvation wages.

Blow off their illusions.

Stereotypical of it's duality a stereotype can be a positive or negative, a censorship or a shortcut. It depends on the senders intent and the receivers conceptions. Two problems occur simultaneously, that of definition and of use. What to do?

Well, always remember 'Sticks and stones may break my bones but names will never hurt me' and if that doesn't work, throw one of the clever concepts I've uncovered while trying to decide just what the problem is with everybody's attitude.

Ingno-re-ants is an excuse as shown in this book of prose.

Imagining 56 ways to 'Kill TheRich' is a lot easier to read than the title suggests.

And just because I stated that my 56 ideas are the Top this shouldn't dissuade you from using your own number 57 if it satisfies that urge.

Selection from 'Top 56 Ways to Kill TheRich'49. Just Desserts

The Rich are force fed brand name confectionery until they are bloated. You will probably have to use a bung hole plug to avoid a mess. Stuff em good. Then roll them down a ramp into a giant vat of over their head whipped cream. Top with shaved truffles. Serves many and serves them good.

48. Yacht A Be More Careful Next Time

The Rich yacht owners are taken for a luxury cruise and meal. A cork is then stuffed up their bung hole and ropes resembling nooses are fastened around their necks with the other end securely tied to the boat before they are tossed over the side. Leave some slack and sink the boat. If they can drag it back to shore they win. Their families may join them.

47. Just Deserts?

The Rich are given to the Bedouin and the Bedouin's donkeys are taken away. The Bedouin will know what to do. It's like the old saying "The only thing worse than being a Bedouin's wife is being his donkey!" Ha, ha, ha.

That o'er the traps and hazards of many a course
Have glow'd like putted Palmerus, now slice, now hook,
The office and devotion of their view
Upon a tawny green: his Captain's heart,
Which in the scuffles of great matches hath burst
The buckles of his toga, reneges all temper,
And is become the foam and the brush
To wash a gypsy's balls.

Is virtually one big poem being littered as a lot of little poems belittling little e-miners for a little bit of fun and a little Deep Thought.

I thought I take a stab a design but my mind mined mine mien.

F OFF BANF

As mentioned in the introduction this project originated as a series of poems written when I imagined how a poet who stuttered would have problems with pronouncing Banff Arts Festival.

A Stuh-Stuh-Stuttering Poet Visits Buh-Buh-Banf-fuff Arts Festival

Buh-buh-Banf-fuff

Arts

fe-fes-Festival

fa-fas-fast evil

fi-fis-fist lave

guh-guh-get it

Fist Lave

Or Stif leav vile Staf

Yur choys

(Hidden message)

I wrote a strongly worded letter to the Mayor but he diss- missed my proposal.

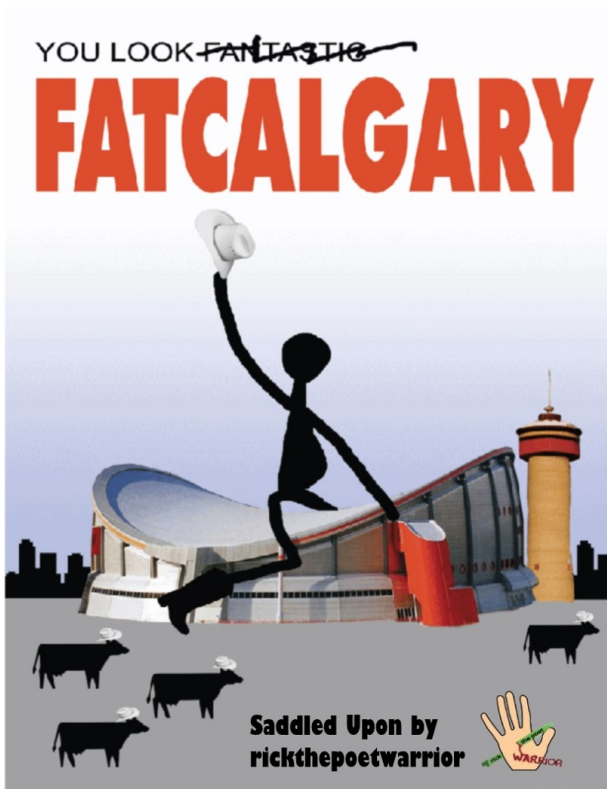

Continues ...

Banf-fuff is so F-F-Effing Right On

Aye-Eye-I told the may-may-Mayor
That buh-buh-Banf-fuff should “F Right Off”
He-he-he said
Go “F-RIGHT-OFF yourself”
Or not
No effing way
Banf
Effing right

YLF You Look FatCalgary

BIG people in a BIG city need a BIG poem. Naturally. More than just that, it moos you to think.

Is bigger better?

Using Calgary as a backdrop the author satirizes the self-serving nature of the public as it continues to fatten itself, not only physically, but egotistically as well.

This fat poem describes the foibles of this me (us) first mentality and attempts to convince the public that perhaps things have gotten out of hand.

Selection from 'You Look FatCalgary'

I

I used to say Fort Calgary
but now I say Fat Calgary
fatcalgary

II

Fatcalgary
quite a mouthful
big, bloated fatcalgary
no, not the city Calgary
Fatcalgary the people
thepeoplefatcalgary
the people fat Calgary
thepeoplefatcalgary

III

Look
I can't help it
thepeoplefatcalgary
the people fat Calgary
thepeoplefatcalgary
So I had to make this poem bigger
fatcalgary

of course it had to be fat
fat with lumps of words fatcalgary and oozing fatcalgary and Plus 15 fatcalgary
No coincidence that

V

Fatcalgary
is flat in someplace
Fatcalgary
has rolls of hilling

IVa

And throughout this poem
fatcalgary
I've carefully avoided the similarity between fatcalgary and flatulence which must be fat
in Fatcalgary
