

Teaching Fishin’ Leadership Conversations By Doug Booker

Co-authors:
Rev. Jack Blansit
Dr. Charlene Dunfree

Teaching Fishin’ is one in a series of books about developing leaders in the workplace, church, educational settings—virtually anywhere that strong leadership skills are needed in order to succeed.

Using a conversational approach, professor, consultant and author Doug Booker offers insight, a short story and practical application exercises to teach individuals how to develop leadership skills and teach those skills to others.

“What a great book! I loved how you made me feel as if you were speaking right to me...I would suggest this book to my HR department as a common sense approach to doing business-the Teaching Fishin’ way!”

Sherrie Brandaw
