

Alishia Constance Marie Morris was born to an immigrant family coming from France to marvel in the wealth of the New World. Her young life was full of happy childhood experiences until the night of her fifth birthday. On that night, the fragile hope of youth was shattered when her parents abandoned Alishia. But Alishia emerged from the fragments of her youth to find a new life.

Dimetre LaGuerre, a wealthy land owner, took her in. He raised her to be an educated and self-reliant woman. Dimetre also showered her with enough love to overcome the pain of her youth. With his love and understanding, Alishia was able to conquer even the most difficult of situations. His love allowed her to see a brighter future. His love was the only sight she had. Alishia Constance Marie Morris was born blind. But was Dimetre's fatherly love enough for her heart?

Robin Adams was born in northern Illinois. She now resides in southern Kentucky with her dear friend and two cats. She has been writing poetry and short stories since an early age. She is currently pursuing her Bachelor's degree in English.
